In Chapter 3, we developed a two-part definition of racial discrimination: differential treatment on the basis of race that disadvantages a racial group and treatment on the basis of inadequately justified factors other than race that disadvantages a racial group (differential effect). We focus our discussion on discrimination against disadvantaged racial minorities.

A Racial Equity Theory of Change This booklet takes on this task of making racial equity operational by outlining a Racial Equity Theory of Change (RETOC). The RETOC is a five-step primer for tackling community problems that are marked by chronic racial inequities. Racial Inequality: Emphasis on Explanations JAMES E. CONYERS—INDIANA STATE UNIVERSITY Abstract Three broad theoretical varieties of racial inequality are discussed: (1) deficiency theories; (2) bias theories; and (3) structural discrimination theories. Within the expanding domain of gender theory, three aspects are commonly understood to operate simultaneously and in interconnected manners. First, gender is a feature of subjectivity, that is to say, people conceive of and recognize themselves in gendered terms, both individually and collectively.
